

WEEVIL IMPOVERISHING

MANY PARTS OF SOUTH

Many parts of the South are being impoverished and the clothing industry is being hampered by the cotton boll weevil. Senator Smith (D.) of South Carolina declared today. He predicted a two and one-quarter billion dollar loss to the nation this year from this source.

"Between six and seven million bales of cotton have been destroyed this year by the weevil," he said. His investigations have revealed. "One million bales have been wiped out in South Carolina."

"The possibilities are that next year will be still more disastrous. In the face of this the price of cotton is still dropping. A cotton famine is in sight."

WOMAN ACCUSED OF HAVING 2 TOO MANY HUSBANDS

First Mate Held With Baltimore Prisoner, Heroine of Multi-Marriages.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 16.—This is the story of "The Three Husbands," or "The Girl Who Didn't Know." The heroine is Mrs. Annie Allen Buckland-Reddy-Derr, thirty-two years old, allegedly with three husbands and no divorce.

Back in 1914, when the heroine was just a backwoods girl of the Virginia mountains, she was wooed and won by Garnett Buckland, Husband No. 1, according to the tale she told the police here last night. They went to live at Savage, Md., and in 1918 drifted apart. Both spent last night at the Western police station, she charged with bigamy and he held pending an investigation.

Within a year Charles J. Reddy appeared upon the horizon of her life. He also wooed and won her, according to her alleged admission, becoming Husband No. 2, as someone had told her Husband No. 1 had obtained a divorce. She said she could neither read nor write, and didn't know it wasn't so. She lived in blissful happiness, also in Savage, until Husband No. 2 learned of Husband No. 1. They then drifted apart.

Robert E. Derr, a private in the Twelfth Infantry, Camp Meade, wooed and won the heroine this year, becoming Husband No. 3, as she had heard that Reddy had obtained a divorce. All went well until Reddy, now living at 1225 West Cross street, heard his erstwhile wife was in town instead of dead, as reported when Buckland had started divorce proceedings in Ellsboro City.

Reddy saw the heroine's mother and brother last night coming out of the house at 867 West Fayette street. He informed Round Sergeant Rudel and Sergeant Murphy, of the Western district. They investigated and took the heroine to the police station.

NEW PLAN AFOOT TO HELP EUROPE TO STABLE BASIS

Spokesmen for France and Britain Will Put Forth Scheme Before Parley Ends.

By J. BART CAMPBELL.

International News Service.

A far-reaching plan for the economic and financial rehabilitation of Europe which will include the United States, Germany, and Russia will be submitted to the American government by official spokesmen for France and Great Britain before the conclusion of the conference on limitation of armament and Far Eastern questions, Republican members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee predicted today.

Advices reached them that Loucheur, the French Minister of Reconstruction, would join the French delegation to the conference in the role of chief economic expert for the French government.

It was Loucheur who arranged with Walter Rathenau, the German Minister of Reconstruction, the Weisbaden agreement by which Germany is to contribute substantially toward the rehabilitation of the war devastated French areas with an abundant supply of materials and goods running into many millions of gold marks in value.

The Weisbaden agreement, recently approved by the Reparations Commission, is expected to have an enormous influence on the entire subject of German reparations around which, Senators declared, the whole world economic and financial situation is now revolving with a dangerous rapidity that threatens Germany with bankruptcy and France and England with ruin.

Unless reparations and economic conditions are remade, and remade by the dawn of the new year, Senators asserted the stability of the world would not and could not be assured by only fixing a limitation of naval and land armament, and readjusting the Far Eastern and Pacific problems confronting the conference.

The economic restoration of all Europe, they declared, is vital to the success of whatever program for world peace and stabilization the conference may eventually be able to agree upon, and to leave Germany and Russia out of any economic and financial bargain that is contemplated would be sure to have disastrous results not only for the rest of Europe but for the United States.

SEAS OF LIQUOR SEIZED IN W. VA. BY DRY AGENTS

100,000 Gallons of Bootleg Doesn't Include "Old Hen" or "Pick Handle."

By International News Service.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 16.—More than 100,000 gallons of moonshine whiskey were seized in West Virginia during the first nine months of this year, according to figures obtained from the office of Prohibition Commissioner Walter S. Hallanan, when he turned the office over to W. C. Brown, the new commissioner.

These figures do not include the "old hen," the "pick handle," home brew, wine and a variety of other concoctions of cruder manufacture seized, estimated at several hundred thousand gallons.

According to the official figures, 108,500 gallons of moonshine were confiscated between January 1 and October 1. A total of 950,510 gallons of mash was destroyed during the same period. Stills seized totaled 591, while 1,050 arrests were made.

That moonshine is not confined to the mountain fastness is indicated by the fact that Kanawha county, in which is located the seat of the State government, topped the list of counties in the number of stills confiscated, with a total of 216. Arrests in Charleston and Kanawha county numbered 316, while 205,275 gallons of mash were destroyed and 1,151 gallons of whiskey seized.

In one raid, on George's Creek, about six miles from Charleston, State prohibition officers seized six copper stills, some of which were in operation. The following day, in the same vicinity, three more were captured.

April, with 150, leads the months in the number of arrests made, while February takes first place in the number of stills destroyed—104.
